Masterpiece Discovered After
Two-year Search.

TAKEN FROM LOUVRE

Italian Who Stole Painting Arrested in Florence After World-wide Hunt.

Florence, Italy, Dec. 12.—Leonardo Da Vinci's masterpiece, "Mona Lisa," the mysterious disappearance of which from the Louvre in August, 1911, threw the art world into consternation, was found today in Florence. The man who stole it was arrested. He is an Italian.

"Mona Lisa" is one of the world's most famous paintings and is regarded as priceless. Leonardo Da Vinci took as his model for the picture Liza Del Giocondo, a woman of Florence. He worked on the picture for four years, from 1503 to 1504. It was bought for France by Francis I.

Since the disappearance from the Louvre of the picture, the search had been world wide. It has been reported found in Germany, Russia, England, Spain and even in the United States.

The famous painting had hung in the place of honor in the Louvre in a room which was supposed to be always watched. It disappeared on the morning of August 22, 1911, and its absence from its accustomed place was not noticed by its guardians until some hours later. At first a quiet search was made in every nook and corner of the museum and discreet questions were asked of the hundreds of copyists and photographers who daily crowded the museum. The questioning was all without result.

When the police authorities had been informed they immediately ordered the museum closed. A thorough search by detectives followed. They found the empty frame lying on a servant's stairway in the museum building, but no trace of the picture which it had enclosed.

Paris, Dec. 12.—The famous "Joconde" was found today when the picture was offered by an Italian resident of Paris to an antiquary of Florence, according to an announcement made this afternoon by the French minister of public instruction.

Both the picture and the Italian are now in custody of the police of Florence.

"I stole the picture," said the man "in order to avenge the thefts which Napoleon committed in Italy."

MORMONS ARE HEAVY LOSERS

Flower of Church Colonists in Mexico—Over $10,000,000
Lost in Revolution.

Los Angeles, Cal., Dec. 12.—Revolution in Mexico has cost Mormon colonists from the United States more than $10,000,000. This was the statement credited today to President Joseph F. Smith, of the Mormon church, who is here on his return from a visit to the refugees in Arizona and southern California.

The church head also said he favored a plan for the exiled colonists to settle where they now are instead of returning to Mexico when conditions permit.

"The flower of our colonies was in Mexico," President Smith said. "Our people had labored there for a quarter of a century and achieved wonderful results. They were forced to give up whole towns and cities—their homes and churches, all to the value of more than $10,000,000."

"I am issuing a special message to the unhappy exiles from Mexico," he continued.

"It is this: 'Look not with longing hearts upon Mexico, but build new homes and new churches where you are.'"

YOUNG MAN WHOSE RECORD MAY STOP A WEDDING

Two themes very pertinent to the moral education of young people, were discussed this week during the devotional period at Weber academy. The first was by the principal, Professor W. W. Henderson, who began by remarking that he had read the evening before an announcement of the death of Montgomery Ward. Here, said the speaker, is a name familiar to every household in America; not perhaps in the usual niches of fame—that is to say, not as soldier, author, artist, statesman, or philanthropist, but simply as a successful business man. Mr. Ward began his career in Chicago as errand boy, at a salary of 25 cents a day. At his death he left a business worth $40,000,000.

The speaker digressed here to show that a successful life was not necessarily to be measured in terms of dollars. Indeed, the accumulation of wealth he considered among the lower or baser ideas of life; but whoever would know the road to achievement in any line of human endeavor, might well study the career of this merchant prince of America.

Professor Henderson then proceeded to show that the moral factors which made this man great and eminent among his followers, are present right here and now, and may be made use of every hour of the day by the humblest and poorest boy or girl in the school and, further, that of these rules of conduct be followed undeviatingly, they will lead to greatness as surely as effect follows cause.

The second theme was by Professor Jensen, who prefaced his remarks by reading parts of a letter addressed to him by an old friend, inquiring as to the character of a certain young man, who was corresponding with his friend's daughter.

case situation. But a little reflection—especially when I put myself in that father's place—made me decide to act.

"I first turned to the records of this school and found after a series of low credits and failures, the damaging statement that the young man in question had been expelled for vicious conduct."

"This was a bad start, but there is always opportunity for reform and I began looking up his career since his school days. The young man is employed by a firm of this city, and I really hoped to find reassuring evidence. But I failed. The more I probe into his life, the more strongly convinced I am that no woman should think of linking her life with his."

"Now, this young man once stood on the threshold of honorable life and achievement, even as you do today. How did he fail? By yielding to some stupid and apparently harmless temptation."

And here the speaker illustrated, by referring to a special invitation by a certain pool-hall proprietor to the students. "To go there," said he, "looks like a pleasant, sensible relaxation after hard study. Well, it was perhaps just such an innocent beginning that led to this young man's downfall."

Misses Romana Reeder and Maud Stratford, under the direction of Miss Cragun, gave a luncheon at the academy today. The following guests were present:

W. W. Henderson, Miss Cragun, Marlan Renstrom, Ione Jensen, Alta Nielson, Eva Lynham, Ardel Stratford, Laura Goddard.

WEST POINT CHANGES RULES OF ADMISSION

Washington, D. C., Dec. 12.—Regulations for admission to the military academy at West Point have been modified and that without lowering the entrance requirements, prospective cadets may be matriculated by substituting equivalents for some of the studies hitherto insisted upon. The effect of this change, made public today in orders from the war department, will be that a youth need not be in good standing in a university, college or technical school, the entrance requirements of which include proficiency in mathematics and English as outlined by the college examination board or a certificate that he has graduated from a preparatory school meeting the requirements of that board, or a certificate that he has passed 14 units of the entrance examinations required by the board, including mathematics, English and history.

FEDERALS AWAIT REBEL ATTACK

Insurgents Increasing in Number Outside Ojinaga—Villa Reinforcements Advancing

Presidio, Texas, Dec. 12.—The situation at Ojinaga, Mex., on the border where the federal troops have concentrated today was one of patient waiting in anticipation of a rebel attack. Rebel bands were reported to be increasing in number outside the village but were believed to be waiting for reinforcements which General Francisco Villa has sent from Chihuahua. The federals probably will be under siege but will have the advantage of being able to take provisions and clothing from the United States.

Ojinaga suddenly has grown in population from almost nothing to six or seven thousand. The federal soldiers and civilians who have not crossed the river are crowded in a few adobe houses.

Many temporary stores have been erected in Presidio to meet the great demand for provisions. All the goods have to be hauled from Marfa, Texas, the nearest railway station.

MASKED BANDITS ROB HANSEN AND ITS PATRONS

A bold holdup occurred last night in the saloon owned by Gus Hansen at 2263 Washington. Two masked men entered the place just at closing time, while Hansen and the bartender, Joseph Nockley, were counting up the day's receipts. Nels Knudsen was standing near the bar and Charles Cross, who came into the saloon while the holdups were there, contributed to the booty obtained by the bandits.

Each of the holdups carried a revolver and one of them forced the victims to place their hands upon the bar while the other searched them. Cross was the biggest loser from the search, the bandits securing $20 from his pockets and a diamond stud valued at about $125 from his shirt bosom.

The robber who was doing the searching also tried to get Hansen's diamond stud, but bent the screw and could not get the pin loose.

After the victims were searched, the robbers forced the proprietor to go into the office and give them the money in the safe. Hansen turned over nearly $200 and was then marched back into the saloon to open the cash register. From the cash register they secured $30.

The two masked men then backed out of the saloon by the rear door, leaving their victims covered with their revolvers. As soon as they were outside, they ran north and made their escape.

When the robbers left, Hansen called the police and a search was made but no trace of the robbers was found.

Detective Robert Chambers and Deputy Sheriff Hobson. The men were caught on lower Twenty-fifth street and taken to the station to have the victims of the holdups were called in for the purpose of identifying the suspects, but were unable to do so. It is probable that the men will be released this afternoon.

JUSTICE OF PEACE TO HOLD THE MARTIN HEARING

Last evening County Attorney David Jensen and Attorney Joseph Chee for J. H. Martin agreed to have the preliminary hearing of Martin held before Justice of the Peace Reuben T. Rhees of Pleasant View, beginning next Tuesday morning.

Both attorneys were favorable to one of the judges of the district court as committing magistrate, but the judge refused to act on the ground that the one hearing was matter would be disqualified as a trial judge, and that, if they established a precedent of sitting as committing magistrate in the blackmail cases, it would not be long until they both would be disqualified from trying them, which would necessitate calling a judge from some other district.

Attorney Jensen states that he will be prepared Tuesday morning to proceed regularly with the hearing and he feels certain that Martin will be held to the district court. On the other hand, Attorney Chee states that he is ready to meet the issue and he is of the opinion that Martin will be released by the justice of the peace.

The jury commissioners have not yet concluded their work of selecting a trial jury for the year 1914, but good progress is being made. The order from the judges of the district court for the drawing of a grand jury from the trial jury list will not be given until the commissioners have reported the completion of their labors.

The commissioners stated today that they are of the opinion that the list will be completed tomorrow, which means that, in all likelihood, the order for the grand jury will not be made until Monday. However, it is expected that if the list of jurors is ready at any time tomorrow, the judges will immediately sit en banc to make the order and have the list for the grand jury drawn.

The preliminary hearing of J. H. Martin is expected to take up the time of Magistrate Rhees over a period of two or three days, as there will be many witnesses to examine. Mr. Chee says that he has not determined whether he will introduce any testimony.

BOMB EXPLODES GIRL IS KILLED

Head of Young Woman Nearly Torn Off at Bottling Works.

ROOM IS WRECKED

Plate Glass Windows Shattered, Jagged Hole Torn in Floor—Others Injured.

New York, N. Y., Dec. 12.—A bomb sent by express exploded and instantly killed a young woman employee in an uptown bottling works today and injured two men employees. The girl's head was nearly torn off.

In the confusion there was delay in identifying the girl. The package was addressed to Thomas McCabe, one of the office forces. He was standing near the girl when he opened it. His left ear was torn off and Michael Ryan, another employee, was cut by flying glass.

Later the police learned that the girl was Ida Anusewitz. She was 18 years old and had been employed by the company only a short time.

The package containing the bomb was addressed to the bottling company in stencil. It was received by McCabe, who placed it on the girl's desk.

The force of the explosion wrecked the room, shattering plate glass windows and tearing a jagged hole in the floor.

Employees of the company connected the explosion with the alleged dismissal recently of thirty workmen by William H. Callanan, proprietor. Callanan, however, denied having discharged the workmen and told the police that they are working today.

The bomb was delivered by express. Apparently it contained dynamite, as the force of the explosion was downward.

Who sent the bomb and why, were questions that set half a hundred or more detectives at work on every possible clue. On the wrapper they found in writing the return address—23 State street, New York City. The building at this address is a large office building, occupied chiefly by exporting firms who employ a number of foreigners.

The bureau of combustibles, working on the mystery with the few pieces of metal found in the floor and walls, announced that the missile was of similar construction to the bomb sent to Judge Rosalski about two years ago.

CURRENCY BILL IS DEFENDED

Senator Hitchcock Severely
Arraigns Democratic Caucus—Stone Assails Banks.

Washington, Dec. 12.—A vigorous defense of the Democratic caucus as the only method of carrying party promises into effect marked the opening of the currency debate today in the senate. Replying to severe arraignments of the caucus made last night by Senator Hitchcock, who differs with his Democratic associates on currency legislation, Senator Newlands declared the caucus was the instrument by which "administration measures" representing the results of the party counsel, could be made effective.

Senator Borah, Republican of Idaho, assailed the administration bill vigorously. He read from a speech by George M. Reynolds of the Continental and Commercial National Bank of Chicago, quoting Reynolds as having said he was one of twelve men who controlled the finances of the country.

No New Advances.
Washington, Dec. 12.—Up to 3 p. m., today no additional dispatches had been received from Rear Admiral Fletcher and there were no other advances to indicate that the fighting at Tampico had come to any result.
